JOE KUHN HAS MIX UP WITH THE POLICE

Within two minutes after Joe Kuhn had been found guilty of the charge of vagrancy, this morning, and had been fined $10, he was arrested again on a charge of disturbing the peace, placed against him by Detective Charles Pincock and Sergeant C. E. Layne.

According to the police, Kuhn had taken exception to some of the statements of Detective Pincock on the stand during the trial this morning and, after being sentenced, he had taken up the matter with some heat just outside the court room door. Kuhn is said to have told Pincock that, while he might be able to "beat up" drunks and vags, the detective could not beat him up. When Kuhn grew warm on this subject, Sergeant Layne and the detective arrested him within a few feet of the entrance to the cells.

Judge John E. Bagley heard the trial. An affidavit of prejudice having been entered by the attorney for Kuhn, Judge W. H. Reeder relinquished the bench.

Sergeant C. E. Layne stated that he arrested Kuhn about a week ago at 3:30 in the morning. Previous to the arrest, Kuhn was talking to a drunken man in front of a hotel, until the clerk, fearing that the man might lose his money, urged the intoxicated person to go to bed.

In his defense, Kuhn stated that, on the night in question, he had escorted a young lady to her home but he could not tell the location of her residence and only knew that her name was Jones.

Assistant City Attorney Haywood recommended that the judge sentence Kuhn to not more than 15 days in jail or $15 fine.

Kuhn claims the police are hounding him.

TWO OGDEN GIRLS IN AUTO WRECK

MISS PEARL WILLIAMS AND MISS CLARA FRY INJURED AND DRIVER OF MACHINE IS KILLED—NIGHT RIDE IN WHICH TERRIFIC SPEED ENDS IN DEATH—BOTH GIRLS ARE TAKEN TO HOSPITAL, WHERE MISS FRY REGAINS CONSCIOUSNESS

Miss Pearl Williams of Ogden was one of a party of four in an automobile accident in Portland, Oregon, in which the driver of the car was killed and Miss Williams and her cousin, Miss Clara Fry also of Ogden were seriously injured.

Mrs. C. Larsen of west Eighteenth streets, an aunt, received word yesterday of the accident.

Miss Williams is 19 years old and was an employee of the Ogden Furniture company, being on a vacation in Portland.

The following account of the accident is from one of the Portland papers:

Carelessness of Claud Sumption, the 19-year-old son of Dr. H. L. Sumption, a dentist, coupled with his inexperience as a driver, resulted in the young man's death, the serious injury of Miss Clara Fry of 474 Columbia street, and her cousin, Miss Pearl Williams of Ogden, Utah, and the demolition of a five passenger automobile, in a smashup on the Powell Valley road near East Seventy-second street.

The dying youth and the two girls were hurried to the Good Samaritan hospital in an ambulance and the police touring car, where City Physician Ziegler treated them. Sumption, who sustained a broken neck, died at 5:30 this morning without regaining consciousness. Miss Fry is suffering from a broken wrist and Miss Williams from a dislocated shoulder. The fourth occupant of the car, Curtis D. Hickock, who resides on East Fifty-fourth street, escaped with only minor bruises.

As far as can be ascertained, responsibility for the tragic accident rests with Sumption, who paid for his recklessness with his life. With the car traveling at a rate of 35 or 40 miles an hour, he had turned around in his seat to speak to Miss Williams and Hickock, who were on the rear seat, when the machine swung off the road and struck the soft dirt which slopes into a seven foot ditch. The car zigzagged along the edge of the roadway for about 70 feet, then shot into a telegraph pole. The automobile struck at an angle and the impact caused it to swing entirely around.

Sumption was hurled 20 feet from the wheel. Miss Fry fell under the wrecked machine and Miss Williams and Hickock were tossed into the clear, he escaping with a few bruises, while she sustained a dislocated shoulder.

The machine was badly wrecked, the wheels being broken and the superstructure smashed.

The wreck had hardly occurred when Dr. E. D. Johnson, with a party in an automobile came upon it. The police were immediately notified and the ambulance called by Police Captain Keller, who accompanied by Patrolman Moreland, left for the scene in another machine.

When they arrived Miss Fry, still unconscious, was found under the wrecked automobile, and Dr. Johnson was attempting to resuscitate Sumption.

Investigation today shows that Sumption had taken the automobile in direct disobedience of his father's instructions.

Dr. Sumption said today that he had forbade his son using the car because the young man was reckless. Unknown to his father, however, the youth had learned to operate it, recently, and while Dr. Sumption was out to the theatre last night the boy took it from the garage, and accompanied by Hickock and the two young women, who were likewise out without permission, went out for what was to be a "ten minute ride."

They took the Division road to Gresham, thence started back for Portland over the Powell Valley road. A short distance out of Gresham they came upon Dr. Johnson's party stalled by a broken machine. Hickock got out and spent an hour repairing the Johnson car and then the young people departed for Portland.

"We helped you because we might need a little help ourselves," shouted Sumption to Dr. Johnson as he threw in the gears.

A short time later the doctor was trying in vain to save the young man's life.

Owing to the delay caused by aiding the Johnson party Sumption speeded up the car determined to get into Portland as soon as possible.

He had gone only a few miles when the accident occurred. Whether the machine struck a bump in the road and careened into the pole, or whether it ran off the roadway while Sumption was turning to address his companions, is not exactly clear to either of the girls.

"All I remember was a big bump, which threw me into the air, and then I found myself walking on the road with my shoulder hurting me," said Miss Williams at the hospital today.

"I don't recollect anything," said Miss Fry. "We were going along awfully fast, and then I woke up in the hospital with father and mother in the room."

"We had started out for a short 10 minute ride just to cool off. The boys called at my home shortly after 9 o'clock.

"We had been out in the machine all day, and had been at the Oaks, too. I'm on my vacation and my cousin is out here with her mother visiting us. At Gresham we all had an ice cream soda, and were on our way home when we happened across a party of motorists whose machine was out of order. We waited there a long time while Mr. Hickock fixed it and then we started home fast because it was late."

Miss Fry is the daughter of W. A. Fry, a carpenter, who moved to Portland from Ogden about a year ago. Miss Williams and her mother, a widow, came to visit the Frys about a month ago, and Miss Williams was to return to Ogden next week. Her mother, who is in Astoria visiting relatives, was notified of the accident this afternoon.

PROCEEDINGS IN POLICE COURT

A Dykman, charged with drunkenness, was found guilty by Judge W. H. Reeder and sentenced to serve seven days or pay a fine of $7. Dykman was arrested last evening on complaint of J. F. Stephens that Dykman was frightening women and children in the vicinity of Stephens' home. Stephens declared Dykman was drunk as likewise did Chief W. L. Norton.

Dykman denied that he was drunk and said that he had only ordered the children from his pear orchard.

Ben Jarbeau, a linotype operator, pleaded guilty to the charge of drunkenness and was given a sentence of five days or $5. He asked the court to delay passing sentence until Monday when he could pay a fine.

A BIG TOMATO CROP AND GOOD MARKET

With the present prices, the present demand and the excellent prospects for a wonderful tomato crop, W. J. Parker, interested in a number of canneries near Ogden, declares that if any canner in this vicinity does not have the entire output of his cannery sold before it is canned, it is his own fault.

"We will have a wonderful crop of tomatoes this year," said Mr. Parker at the Weber club today. "The weather has been ideal for the crop and as a result we have a better stand and better prospects than last season. From present indications, the canning season will begin ten days earlier than last season—possibly on August 25."

When asked concerning the season for peas, Mr. Parker stated that the crop was only 75 per cent of the normal yield for this part of the state but he added that the peas were of excellent quality. The pea season has ended.

HOLDUPS AGAIN CAUSE REIG OF TERROR

Within an hour after the neighborhood in the vicinity of Monroe and Twenty-sixth street had been aroused by a fusillade of shots by neighbors at a fleeing burglar, had attempted to enter the residence of B. W. Ballantyne, Evert Neuteboom, Jr., the 17-year-old son of the clerk of the Weber stake, assaulted by a holdup when the could find no valuables upon young man after he had searched near the Joseph H. Thomas residence 2549 Madison avenue, only a bit away from the scene of the first clement.

The sound of the pistol shots, a story of the attempted burglary, and the report of the holdup and assault on young Neuteboom caused a stampede among the neighbors and the telephone in the police station was kept ringing, the residents asking for protection from the desperate characters they believed to be still in the neighborhood.

Just a short time before the attempted burglary, Dr. Lorin Rich had observed a man loitering before his residence, at 2579 Monroe avenue. Suspicious of the fellow because two daughters of Lave Farley had fled to his house for protection but a short time before from a man who the girls said had followed them to the High school, Dr. Rich left his house and questioned the man, receiving an answer that he was waiting to keep an appointment.

Soon after, a man believed to be the same fellow, attempted to climb into the apartment of B. W. Ballantyne. Ballantyne was in the pantry at the time and, when he observed the fellow's actions, he secured his revolver and returned to the pantry. While the man was still peering in the window, which is some feet from the ground, Ballantyne blazed away twice through the screen of the window, but both shots apparently went wild.

At the sound of the shots, Dr. Rich, who lives but two doors to the north, hurried from his residence with a gun and saw the stranger, with whom he had talked but a few minutes before, fleeing down Monroe avenue toward Twenty-fifth street. When the man did not stop as ordered to do so the physician fired two shots in the air but the sound of the gun only added greater speed to the flight. Dr. Rich was afraid to fire directly at the man because there were persons passing in the street.

Sergeant Layne and Patrolman Russell went to the address of the man who disappeared down Twenty-fifth street and Ballantyne in the meantime telephoned to the police.

Patrolmen Swanson, Hearn and Manzell reported in the patrol wagon. At about 11 o'clock, Evert Neuteboom, Jr., was returning to his home when, at a point near the Thomas residence, a dark clothed man jumped out from behind a tree and ordered Neuteboom to throw up his hands. Frightened at the sudden encounter with the holdup upon the dark street, the young man did not at once follow orders and the thug slapped him in the face for his delay and ordered him to remove his coat. When the coat was taken off, the robber changed his mind and had him put it on again, after which he searched the pockets.

Finding only a pair of glasses and some valueless articles, the robber swore and struck Neuteboom. Then with the order to "beat it," the fellow struck the young man again with his fist, causing the blood to flow freely from his nose. As Neuteboom ran to his home, the robber went the other way.

Neuteboom ran to his home, the robber went the other way.
